The Sustainable Organization Library is hosted on the IngentaConnect platform: host to more than 11,000 publications and serving 25 million users in more than 20,000 business and university libraries worldwide.

Getting Around

A browseable list of titles in SOL is collected on the SOL homepage: http://www.ingentaconnect.com/content/collection/gse_susorg2013

You can also reach the homepage at www.gseresearch.com/sol

The browse list shows the content in alphabetical order.
• If you are subscribed to SOL, the items in the collection should have this symbol next to them § and you will be able to view their content.

• You can see which content is new to the collection and has been recently uploaded, as it will have this symbol next to the title N.

• If the § symbol does not appear next to N, this means you are not subscribed to the new content. You can upgrade to new content packages by contacting sales@gseresearch.com.

• The preliminary and supplementary material of our books and journals are free to access, even without a subscription, and they are marked with this symbol F.

To view an item, just click on it from the main list. This will take you to the book or journal page, where you can scroll down to see the individual chapters or articles.

Select the chapter or article you are interested in. This takes you to the chapter page, where you can view the title, source, publisher, and abstract.

To view the chapter or article, click the ‘PDF’ button.

You have access to the full text electronic article

You, or the institution you are accessing from, have subscription access to this publication

Clicking the information links (pictured below) at the foot of the page will navigate away from the content. To get back, use the ‘back’ button on your browser, or log in again at www.gseresearch.com/sol.

Searching

The search function allows you to search with a range of specifications. You can access these by clicking ‘Search’ on the navigation bar.

Using the search option allows you to search for multiple specifications simultaneously: for example, you can search for a keyword and an author name, which will narrow your search results. For example, if you’re trying to find ‘Ethical Attitudes in Business’ by Chris Perryer et al, you would perform a search similar to the one below.
The search function can also be operated using ‘Boolean’ terms. You can narrow the parameter of your search using quotation marks to match an exact word or phrase, an asterisk to match partial words and the terms AND, OR and NOT.

e.g. “X” AND “Y”
“X” OR “Y”
“X” NOT “Y”

Example: Searching for the term ‘CSR’ (Corporate Social Responsibility’) brings back many results. However, searching for CSR AND Banking brings back just 13 results, using the narrower term.

If you are searching for a book title, ensure you search for it under the ‘publication title’ setting.

You can also perform a full text search, which enables you to search all of the book and journal content in SOL for keywords. You do this by selecting the ‘In article fulltext’ option next to the keyword search – captured below:

Using this function means that search results comprise chapters and articles where a keyword is present in the full text, instead of just in the abstract or title. This enables you to find more relevant content.
A search for Caribbean in Title, Keywords and Abstracts brings back only 26 results:
