Law Trove: the essentials

Welcome
Law Trove is an intuitive website with navigation and functionality that is straightforward to use. We’ve put together this short guide to help you and your students get the most from it in a short time. Contact Hadlee Bennett on hadlee.bennett@oup.com, tel: 07903 739574 for direct advice.

Access
You and your students need to be logged into your university network to gain access.

Use the “Sign in via your institution” option in the left hand login box on the homepage and follow the instructions.

Personal profile
To create a personal profile go to the “sign in” button on the top menu. You need to set up a personal profile to experience the full functionality of the Law Trove site.

Directing reading
By default you and your students will have access to all current content on Law Trove (only old editions will not be accessible). So in order to direct your students effectively use DOI (digital object identifier) links when prescribing work.

DOI links are visible at book or chapter level.

Use this string, prefaced with https://dx.doi.org/ to create the full DOI link.

https://dx.doi.org/10.1093/he/9780198836216.001.0001

COVID-19 – support for teachers
www.oup.com/ukhe/covid-19
Law Trove: the essentials

Key skills
Law Trove has coverage of all the law subjects we publish in. As well as some helpful skills titles to help students brush up on their understanding, exam or essay writing skills.
See:
- Finch & Fafinski: Legal Skills
- Strong: How to Write Law Essays and Exams
- Herring: Legal Ethics

Study tools
Be sure to let your student know about the additional study and testing resources accessible via Law Trove.

Look out for the related links in the left hand menu.

In the core subject areas “Related Books” includes links to Essential Cases – content exclusive to Law Trove and ideal for revision and consolidation of key cases.

“Related Links” includes links to free-to-use supporting resources where they can test their understanding.

Revision resources
Law Trove also includes access to all our Concentrate revision and study guides, and Concentrate Q&A guides. Ideal to help students consolidate their knowledge and prepare for exams and coursework.

Just search “Concentrate” to see them all, identifiable by their distinctive covers.

Help and contact
Please refer to our help and FAQ pages on Law Trove, or contact Hadlee Bennett on hadlee.bennett@oup.com, tel: 07903 739574 for more advice on navigating Law Trove.